FESS SPRINGS RARE HUMOR ON THE BUCKEYE REPUBLICAN CLUB

(By Associated Press)
Columbus, Ohio, June 10.—Sound-biting the keynote of the coming republican congressional campaign throughout the nation, Congressman S. D. Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the republican national congressional committee, and senatorial candidate, tonight declared that the republican congress had made good on every one of the platform pledges of 1920 and that republican congressional candidates will face the voters this fall on an "affirmative platform." The address was made before the Buckeye Republican club.

"This campaign will be aggressive and not defensive, because we are going before the country with a record of constructive legislation accomplished which is the greatest and most constructive ever put through by any previous congress in the history of the nation. We have nothing to hide or to be ashamed of," said the congressman.

Asserting that much which congress has done has been of international significance dealing with fundamental economic problems, both national and international, he said, the republican party has "decided to go before the voters with the record and undertake the task of educating them on the real meaning and significance of what has been accomplished."

Mr. Fess continued in part: "The problems to be solved by the congress during the past two years were ready made for the new administration. They were created by the mistakes of the preceding administration. That is, they were made for and not by us, as republican congressmen."

Took on Cargo at West Indian Ports Before Coming North

(By Associated Press)
Norfolk, Va., June 10.—Approximately 1,000 quarts of liquor, valued at $10,000, was seized by marine guards of the navy yard today in a raid on the naval transport Sirius, under orders of Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews, commandant of the Norfolk navy yard. Officers and men of the ship are confined to their ship under guard. The Sirius is commanded by Commander W. J. Kelton, U. S. N.; R. F. Henry Mechtold, ensign, paymaster in charge of cargo aboard the Sirius. Both Commander Kelton and Ensign Bethold were among those confined to the ship at the time of the raid, but Admiral Andrews announced tonight that they with some other officers and men had been permitted to leave the ship.

Both Admiral Andrews and Admiral Rodman, commandant of the fifth naval district, announced that a searching investigation would be made under the direction of Admiral Andrews.

Information came to Admiral Andrews that a strong smell of whiskey was evident in the cargo being unloaded from the Sirius on to barges alongside for shipment to the naval supply station at the naval base. Waiting until the barges had been loaded Admiral Andrews ordered a search of the contents of the shipment and then had the ship thoroughly searched by the marine guard. While search of the vessel was in progress it was reported that 60 cases of whiskey were thrown overboard by members of the crew.

The Sirius returned from Hampton Roads about a week ago from the West Indies and has been at the navy yard since. The whiskey, according to information, was put on board the vessel as cargo at one of the West Indian ports.

The commanding officer of the Sirius, according to Admiral Andrews, was detached from the vessel today and was ordered to the receiving barracks at the naval base.

A board of investigation has been convened and until the board has made its report it is doubtful whether charges will be preferred against any of the officers or the crew. The liquor cargo was not listed in the vessel's manifest.
